

Re-transcription of the Journal of James Lindsay in the year, 1913

[Brackets have been used to indicate clarifications or relationships. One puzzling factor is the mystery of just which Teen or Teenie he was referring to. He had a daughter-in-law, Christina Bauer Lindsay, and a daughter, Christina Kennedy Lindsay Murdock and it is difficult to determine to whom he is referring. ]

March 21. Went to Park City with load pork; 6 weighing 823 lbs @ ten cents $82.30. Roads bad. Went with wagon.

March 22. Went to Heber and did the usual trading and got home in time to do chores.

March 23. Sunday went up and sold Jack and Alex Allison [Alexander Allison was his nephew, the grandson of his brother Andrew Lindsay] 6 ½ tons hay at 8 dollars per ton for two calves making the calves $50.00. [Seems it should be $52.00]

March 24. Went to Heber and done some little business.

March 25. Did chores around home and went up to Dawsons.

March 26. Went to Heber and stayed all night at Teen's [it could be his daughter in law, Christine Bauer Lindsays or his daughter, Christine Lindsay Duke] and went to picture show, one hundred years of Mormonism in Turner's [sp?] Hall. [Even counting from 1820 (first vision) Mormonism was not 100 years old in 1913]

March 27. Still in Heber. Went to court house and listened to testimony in Alan Richie land case.

March 28. Still in Heber. Stayed to attend High Scool [sic] opening speeches and Music was grand.

March 29. Came home. Weather fine but roads muddy nearly all the way home.

March 30. Went to upper stacks to meet George Fisher with cattle and turn hay over but he changed his mind and sold half of the cattle, so did not need the hay but said if it was going to put me out he would take hay and chance selling it also said would take it if I said so.

April 1. Went up to No. 1 dam to see what shape it was in for putting pipe in after draining the lower end and putting temporary set of timbers. Considered it in condition to go to work. Dennis, his man and myself were there.
