Yellowstone Rangers Search for Lost Boy

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (AP)—Park rangers are searching the rugged area around famed Yellowstone Canyon for an eight-year-old California boy missing since Tuesday.

The boy was identified as Dennis Johnson, son of William Johnson, an employee of the Naval Ordnance Depot at Inyoken, Calif.

WANDERS OFF

The chief park ranger's office reported that a younger sister wandered off when the Johnson family stopped at a picnic area along the highway one-quarter mile north of Canyon Junction Tuesday afternoon.

The father and Dennis went separate directions to look for the girl. The father found her, but Dennis vanished.

Park rangers and crews of college students working in a blister rust control program organized into search parties on Wednesday but failed to find a trace of the youngster. A helicopter was used to make low sweeps over the area. Rangers estimate 50 to 100 men were in the search parties.

The overnight temperatures in Yellowstone Park have been mild the past two nights.

Three Scouts Left in Wilds On Way Home

ROCK CREEK LODGE (AP)—Three Salt Lake City Boy Scouts, stranded for a week in the Uinta Mountains of north-eastern Utah, were on their way home today.

They had been camped for a week near Squaw Lake, while others who had hiked with them sought help.

One of the three, Douglas Hendriksen, 14, became ill on the second day of a hike with 12 other scouts and three adult leaders which began July 4.

Two parties were to bring the scouts out.

With Douglas were his cousin, Michael Hendriksen, 13, and Glen Benton, both of Murray.

After Douglas became ill, Michael and Glen were left with provisions for 10 days to care for him while the rest of the party sought aid.

Midvale Youth, 17, Shot To Death on Highway; Watchman Being Held

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—A 17-year-old Midvale boy was shot to death about midnight Wednesday in an incident on Wasatch Blvd., stemming from one driver flashing his bright lights at another car.

Blaine Nichols was killed instantly with a bullet in the head at 8190 South on Wasatch Blvd. Booked on second-degree murder charges was Vern Bolinger, 19, Salt Lake City, a night watchman at Alta.

The youth then drove off toward Alta where he was arrested about an hour later. He told the arresting officer he was not aware he had killed Nichols.

Nichols' companions called the sheriff's office and gave officers a description of Bolinger's truck.

Hamilton said Bolinger would be arraigned at 10 a.m.

TOWARD ALTA

Sheriff's Detective Bud Hamilton said Bolinger was traveling toward Alta in an older model truck. As he passed the interchange, he passed a car driven by Nichols which had the lights on bright. Hamilton said Bolinger then turned on a spotlight on his truck and flashed it at the oncoming car.

The second car then made a U-turn in the road and allegedly forced Bolinger's vehicle off the road.

When Nichols and two companions got out of the car they apparently used abusive language toward Bolinger.

Hamilton said Nichols allegedly opened the truck door and struck Bolinger on the jaw. Bolinger yelled to the boy: "Stand back or I'll put a hole in you."

He then fired a .38 caliber pistol.

Official of NAACP Raps Racial Policies of LDS

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—An official of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People says racial policies of the Mormon Church "are out of the mainstream of Christian religions."

Alfred Baker Lewis, national NAACP treasurer, made the comment Wednesday in response to newsmen's questions.

ON WAY HOME

Lewis is en route to his home after attending the NAACP convention which passed a resolution asking the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints to change its "attitudes . . . toward treatment of the Negro citizen."

But he said he wasn't in Utah in connection with the resolution. He paid a visit to Gov. Calvin L. Rampton and planned to address the Salt Lake City NAACP chapter.

Lewis told newsmen other religions permit Negroes to hold ecclesiastical office, while the LDS church does not.

"Negroes do not like this," he said.

Lewis also said the LDS church takes a stand on other issues, but has not taken a stand on the civil rights movement.

The national treasurer said he had been "reliably informed" that some loyal Mormons feel their church's stand "is immoral and partly based on erroneous interpretation of Mormon doctrine."

Lewis said that to his knowledge the resolution would not be presented formally to LDS church officials.

NO DEMANDS

"We are making no demands on the church," he said. "The resolution is intended to inform our members of its stand more than anything else."

Lewis said he didn't plan to discuss any particular issues with Rampton and had scheduled his visit to Utah before the convention began.

He said the convention also passed a strong resolution against poverty, calling for additional federal public works and education programs.

The National Park Service says the June 1966 increase over last June was 14 per cent, with 154,000 visitors. For the six-month period there were 316,000 visitors, which the service said was up 20 per cent from a year ago.

Utah Highway Toll 151 as Two Killed

Road Slaughter During 1966 Now 13 More Than '65 Period

Utah's 1966 traffic death toll climbed to 151 Wednesday, as two persons were killed in separate traffic accidents and a third person was killed in a construction accident.

One man was killed and two other persons were seriously injured late Wednesday when two cars collided head-on at 8200 S. State St., in Midvale.

Elmer Lundsog, 61, of Pittsburgh, Calif., was pronounced dead on arrival at the Cottonwood LDS Hospital after his car apparently swerved into an oncoming lane of traffic. The other car's driver, 48-year-old Ludean Litster, and his 45-year-old wife, Florence, were both injured.

FATALLY INJURED

Earlier, 16-year-old Randy Stoker of Syracuse was fatally injured when the motorcycle on which she was riding apparently went out of control and skidded in Ogden Canyon. The motorcycle was driven by Kenneth Kay Gardner, 16, of Clearfield.

The 1966 road fatality count is now 13 more than on this date a year ago.

A Salt Lake City highway worker was killed early Wednesday when he apparently stumbled and was crushed by a backing 22-ton gravel truck. He was William L. Moss, 42, who was a Utah Highway Department crew foreman working at 1032 21st East.

DRIVER NAMED

The truck was driven by Clarence Paul Martz of Salt Lake City.

The death was considered an industrial accident and was not added to the road toll.

500-FOOT SECTION

The test sections will be built in 500-foot sections on the salt flats — near where the world land speed record was set. But the construction won't interfere with any record attempts, such as those planned for next month.

Low Bid on Institute?

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—Cannon - Papanikolas Construction Co., Salt Lake, was named for a $1.1 million automotive building at the Salt Lake Trade Technical Institute.

Utah to Test Road Strip For Salt Beds

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Utah plans to build a piece of highway across the Bonneville Salt Flats — but not for racing or speed records.

It's for a test — a test of interstate highway construction — to find the best method for building Interstate-80 from Wendover to Knolls.

RUN TESTS

But the State Highway Department wants to run tests on three types of road construction for the salt beds. One will completely excavate the salt bed and replace it with sand and gravel.

Another will provide for a superficial excavation with a granular fill. The third will have trenching on each side with impervious clay material placed in the trenches to prevent water from percolating into the salt beds underneath the interstate.
