The objective of this class is to learn about basic records types, research strategies, and requirements needed to locate place of origin and begin researching Hispanic ancestors in their native lands. This class will give some background information about the records and their content. These records can be used to identify your ancestor’s home town in Mexico and other Hispanic countries. The class includes a case study and important search tips and techniques. The examples used in the class are mainly for immigrants who came to the United States in the late 1800s and 1900s but the principles are applicable for those who came earlier as well.

CRUCIAL PIECES OF INFORMATION

The requirements to begin research in the records of the country of origin of your ancestor include:

- Name of the ancestor
- Name of the town and country
- Approximate date(s) of birth, marriage, or death
- Enough information to identify the ancestor in a record such as names of parents, spouse, or child

BORDER CROSSING RECORDS

If your ancestor crossed the U.S. border from Mexico between 1895 and 1957, you may want to try searching for him or her in Border Crossing records.

- Generally from 1895-1957
- Better after 1906

INDEX ORGANIZATION

- Similar-sounding surnames may be filed together
- Within a surname, first names that start with the same letter may be filed together
- Within a surname, there may have been no attempt to alphabetize by first name

TYPES OF FORMS

- Form 548, 548-B, or Form I-448, Manifest – These are the best!
